Courses

CLTR 1000. Cultures, Societies, and Global Studies at Northeastern. (1 Hour)
Introduces first-year students in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities to the liberal arts in general. Seeks to familiarize them with their major, to help them develop the academic skills necessary to succeed (analytical ability and critical thinking), to provide grounding in the culture and values of the university community, to help them develop interpersonal skills, and to familiarize them with all skills needed to become a successful university student.

CLTR 1120. Introduction to Languages, Literature, and Culture. (4 Hours)
Examines the rich interconnections between literature and language and the culture that supports them. Discusses the relationship of language to literature and investigates how language and literatures are embedded in culture. Addresses several very broad and important questions, such as the relationship between language and culture; the relationship between language and thought; the definition of cultural relativism; and how ethical dilemmas are expressed in different cultures. Explores the relationship of esthetic and rhetorical traditions in given languages to the culture from which they sprang. In this context, examines the extremely interesting case of American Sign Language and how a gestural language sheds light on these issues.

CLTR 1251. Dante's "Inferno" and Medieval Italian Culture. (4 Hours)
Presents an overview of Dante's "Commedia," focusing on the first section, "Inferno," read in English translation. Examines the descending stages of hell; their meanings; and their social, political, and historical relevance for Dante's society. Dante's "Divina Commedia" created a powerful world, one that had a deep meaning for both the author and the reader of that time. But can one so easily understand it as constructed by the "Commedia" in the Middle Ages? Does Dante's world have relevance today as well? Some scholars may say it does more so than ever. If so, how? Analyzes selected chapters (canti) to offer students an opportunity to attempt to establish the poem’s possible relevance to the modern human condition and perhaps even to themselves.
