

Investments

New York City is home to numerous buy-side investment firms in both traditional asset management and alternative asset management firms in the areas of private equity, private debt, and hedge funds. Students studying investments in New York City are at the center of it all. This location-powered concentration harnesses Northeastern University's signature experiential learning model: The technical skills developed in the classroom directly mirror the work students will perform such as security analysis, portfolio management, and risk management. This concentration is specifically oriented toward these career pathways, making this a unique differentiator for Northeastern's New York City campus.

The concentration is structured around two required courses and two electives that allow students to personalize their preparation for buy-side investment roles.

Admissions to this concentration open in 2027-2028.

Concentration Requirements

Investments Concentration

Code	Title	Hours
Required Courses
FINA 3303	Investments	4
FINA 4219	Portfolio Management	4
Electives
Complete two of the following:		8
FINA 3301	Corporate Finance
FINA 4410	Valuation and Value Creation
FINA 4512	Financial Risk Management
FINA 4604	Fixed-Income Securities
FINA 4983	Special Topics in Finance	